

Invitation CPB Lecture October 17th 2024

Katherine Baicker

Health insurance, out-of-pocket payments, health expenditures, and health outcomes: Policy lessons from experiments

Dear invitee,

We hereby cordially invite you to the annual CPB Lecture. In the coming years, many countries will be confronted with rising health expenditures. To limit the growth of public health expenditures, countries often implement measures such as co-payments or limitations on public benefit packages. However, it's essential to consider the impact of these measures on people's health and solidarity among households.

On October 17, 2024, Katherine Baicker will deliver the CPB Lecture 2024. Katherine Baicker, PhD, is the provost of the University of Chicago and a professor of Health Economics. She serves on the Congressional Budget Office's Panel of Health Advisers.

As the principal investigator of the Oregon Health Insurance Experiment, Baicker examined the effectiveness of health insurance and out-of-pocket payments by conducting a randomized experiment. In the CPB Lecture 2024, she will draw on her experience as a researcher and a policy advisor in U.S. politics. Anne-Fleur Roos (program leader Health at CPB) will introduce new CPB research that examines how insurance policy options affect risk and income solidarity among Dutch households.

We hope to see you on October 17!

Practical information and registration

This meeting is open to the public and will be held at Sociëteit De Witte, Plein 24 in The Hague. The event starts at 14:00. To register, please e-mail secretaressepool@cpb.nl. You are welcome to forward the invitation to other interested parties.

Journalists/media can register by contacting Jacco van Maldegem, j.j.van.maldegem@cpb.nl.